

Jun 8 Virtual Intergenerational Event June 14

Good Afternoon,

I wanted to share another “My Life, My Stories” event sponsored by our friend and community partner, Brittany Bare. Back in April, Brittany hosted her organization’s first virtual intergenerational event around the theme of loneliness and how it affects the youngest and oldest generations in our community. Some of you may have attended; it was very interesting and very poignant.

The next event is “Intergenerational Conversations: Racial Injustice” and will be held on June 14, 2020 at 4:00pm.

Please read the description below and if you are interested in attending and participating, please register at the link at the bottom of the message. The event is free to attend.

Thank you,
Frank

Intergenerational Conversations: Racial Injustice

My Life, My Stories is a non-profit dedicated to bringing people of all ages together in a safe space to share and learn. It's our mission to offer opportunities for our intergenerational community to be honest and vulnerable with one another during a time that is filled with so much tragedy and suffering.

Please join us for our next virtual intergenerational event to discuss racial injustice. We'll have the opportunity to hear from three African American elders as they share their experiences related to racism and growing up in segregated cities. After hearing their stories, we'll break out into small intergenerational discussion groups led by volunteer facilitators and give you a chance to participate in the conversation.
